Painting, for me, is a search for feeling.

Born in Utrecht in 1986, Patrick comes from a family of artists. Growing up surrounded by art shaped not only his appreciation for painting, but also his belief that creating should come from intuition rather than intention.

His works evolve slowly through layers of colour, texture and experimentation, without a fixed outcome. Rather than following a plan, he allows each painting to reveal itself over time. Silence, patience and observation are essential parts of his process.

Inspired by Japanese aesthetics and a deep appreciation for simplicity, Patrick transforms personal experiences into abstract paintings. Every work begins with his own story, while leaving space for the viewer to discover their own within it.

“SIT AROUND THE FIRE”

150x120cm, 2026 · Mixed materials on canvas

In Sit Around the Fire, I reflect on the idea that even in difficult times, something within us always remains. Like a small ember, what feels almost lost can slowly grow into warmth again. This work is about rediscovering yourself, reconnecting to your inner fire, and remembering that even the smallest spark can become a flame.

“CALMING THE MIND”

150x120cm, 2026 · Mixed materials on canvas

Calming the Mind reflects the moment when thoughts begin to settle and a quieter inner space emerges. Layers of movement give way to a sense of stillness, inviting us to pause, breathe, and return to the present.

“WHERE CHANGE BEGINS”

180x140cm, 2026 · Mixed materials on canvas

In Where Change Begins, I explore the challenging moments in life that can feel confronting, especially the ones that ask us to face ourselves. Though often uncomfortable, these periods can become the starting point of transformation, helping us let go of old patterns and create space for growth.

“WHEREVER THE CURRENT TAKES YOU”

150x120cm, 2025 · Mixed materials on canvas

In Wherever the Current Takes You, I reflect on life as being out on the open sea. There are moments when the horizon feels endless and you are no longer sure which direction to take. What can feel like being lost may simply be life carrying you somewhere you could not yet see. This work is about trusting the unknown, staying...

“THE ART OF BEING ONE”

200x150cm, 2026 · Mixed materials on canvas

In The Art of Being One, I explore the quiet moment when separate worlds begin to come together. Distinct forms and movements find a shared rhythm, creating a sense of connection without losing what makes each one unique. The work is a reflection on unity as something we create through openness, presence, and the willingness to meet.

“HEART’S COMPASS”

150x100cm, 2026 · Mixed materials on canvas

Heart’s Compass is about finding direction by listening inward. Through shifting layers and moments of stillness, the painting reflects the quiet pull of intuition: a sense of where to go, even when the way ahead is not yet clear. It invites us to trust what we feel and let the heart guide the next step.

“SCULPTURE DIVIDER”

195x160cm, 2026 · Mixed materials on wood

Inspired by traditional Japanese room dividers, this sculptural piece explores how a space can be gently separated without being closed off. Its wooden forms create a quiet sense of privacy while allowing light and movement to pass through, bringing a feeling of balance and calm into the room.

“BIRDSONG BALLET”

160x130cm, 2026 · Mixed materials on canvas

In “Birdsong Ballet,” I invite you to witness the graceful dance of nature’s melodies. This artwork captures the harmony and beauty of birds in flight, their songs weaving a delicate symphony. It shows how the simple joy of birdsong can lift our spirits and connect us to the world around us. By listening to their music, we find peace and…

ART IN PLACE AT YOHAKU

Walk the house, room by room

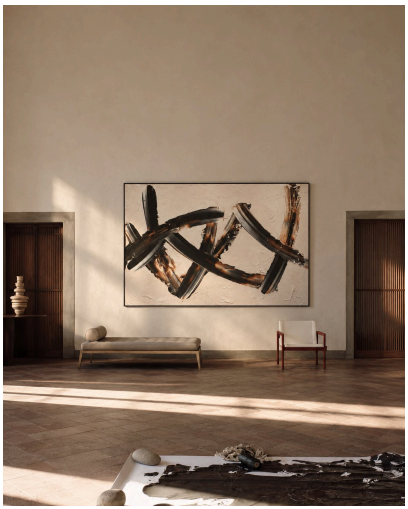

Hidden among the trees, Yohaku is a place where art, nature and everyday life come together. It is a home as much as it is a gallery. My own work lives alongside art by friends and artists I admire, surrounded by books, music, food, conversation and nature.

The paintings are not simply there to be looked at, but to be lived with and felt. Walk through it room by room. In each one, a single work, and the reason it hangs there.
